

BETS A THOUSAND DINNERS.

(Cleveland Leader.)

Robert E. McKisson, former mayor, has wagered 1,000 dinners on the common sense of the present city administration. That he may be taking a long chance seems to be evidenced by the fact that the wager, originally for 100 dinners, was increased tenfold yesterday afternoon under the bantering of the nine skeptics betting against him. The wager will be decided by the erection of the next viaduct connecting the east and the west sides, and the purpose thereof. Mr. McKisson bets the object of this structure will be solely to accommodate street railway traffic. Then the Superior avenue viaduct will be devoted exclusively to the use of the public. He disclaims having any inside information upon the subject, but he has no doubt that common sense will win. Those betting against Mr. McKisson are H. A. Everett, John P. Cowing, David Morrison, C. R. Morley, F. H. Townsend and Max Faetkenheuer, all of Cleveland; F. M. Peet, New York; J. F. Townsend, Akron, and Willis Ramsey, Alliance. Under the terms of the wager each of the losers is to buy ten dinners for each of the other parties to the bet. In other words, if Mr.

McKisson loses it will cost him the price of 1,000 dinners. If he wins, each of the losers will pay for 100 dinners. Confident of winning, Mr. McKisson has already begun figuring upon the easiest method of collecting his eatables and drinkables. He has his eye upon a suite of rooms at the Colonial hotel, where he will comfortably stretch his legs under the mahogany and feast for days and weeks and months at the expense of his fellow-directors in the Hippodrome company. These fellow-directors, on the other hand, are advising him to lay in a new supply of check books. As they are all epicures, none of the checks, if he loses, is likely to be for a small sum.—Cleveland Leader.

FORTUNES PAID FOR PICTURES.

The greatest sale of pictures by American artists were those of the Thomas B. Clark collection in 1899, when George Inness' "Grey Lowery Day" was knocked down for $10,150, the highest price ever paid for the work of an American painter at public auction, and the W. T. Evans collection in 1900. This brought $159,340. Since then P. C. Hanford's one night's sale brought $124,135; E. J. Milliken's twenty-six paintings, $128,328 in one evening; the F. O. Mathiesen's two nights sale, $348,780; the Mrs. Warren collection, $345,025, and the D. C. Lyall collection reached a total of $244,900. The Mrs. Warren sale was noted for one of the most remarkable advances in the cost of a painting ever recorded in America. In 1889 Knoedler & Co. sold her a "Shepherdess," by Millet, for $800. They bought it back at the sale of her collection fourteen years later and paid $24,500 for it.
